

Booking Conditions

By making a booking and welcoming Triple C ladies into your party, pub, sporting event, rented venue or private residence, it is assumed that you agree to respect the following conditions of booking:

First and foremost, our lingerie and topless waitresses are ladies. And every lady deserves gentlemen. Triple C expects all clients to treat our ladies with the utmost respect, allowing them to go about their duties with the smiles that Triple C is renowned for.

A happy, comfortable hostess adds much more to the party, and it is the host's best interests to share these booking conditions with the rest of his party.

The usual "no touching" rules apply to all bookings. Naturally our friendly ladies love to flirt and have a laugh and generally enjoy themselves in your presence, but please respect our girls as you would any other lady by keeping your hands to yourself unless the lady herself is comfortable enough to give you express permission to place them elsewhere!

We're all here to have a great time, but harassment of any sort will not be tolerated.

The host who makes the booking is accountable for the actions of others who are a part of the occasion. Accordingly, if our ladies encounter a problem with a member of the host's party, the host is expected to remedy the situation at the request of Triple C's girls.

Triple C operates on a "3 strikes and you're out" system.

If our ladies feel uncomfortable with their treatment by a member of the host's party and cannot rectify the situation with a smile, the host will be approached and asked to have a word with the offending party.

This is considered strike 1.

If the offending party continues his or her harassment, the host will again be approached and is expected to have a quiet whisper in the offending party's ear, perhaps reminding him or her that this is strike 2, and that if their behaviour doesn't improve the girls may leave, the booking fees will be lost and the party will lose its most important assets.

Obviously if harassment then continues, strike 3 comes into effect and if at this time our girls feel too uncomfortable or unsafe to continue their work they are at liberty to excuse themselves, explain the situation to the host and leave the premises after contacting Triple C's office.

This will result in loss of all funds rendered, including booking fees, and the possibility of being blacklisted at a number of other agencies.

If at any time through the course of the night our girls feel that their safety is under threat, they are authorised by Triple C to leave at their own discretion, with the same result.

Triple C Models is not liable for loss of fees or services resulting from breach of these conditions. Our girls are contractors and therefore authorised to make their own decisions regarding the safety of their workplace.

Booking Deposit: To secure your booking, Triple C Models requires a booking deposit. This forms part of the fees for the night, and is usually refundable in the event of a cancellation. As our hard working girls commit themselves to your booking and forego other work once confirmed, cancellations within 48 hours of the booking date will result in loss of the full booking deposit. This deposit will then be used to subsidise our ladies' lost earnings.

These rules are in place purely to provide safety and comfort for our girls, and ensure that your occasion is one to remember. By confirming a booking through Triple C you agree to abide by these conditions.

Notes for the host:

Payment to Triple C's ladies (the balance of the booking fees) must be made on arrival at the commencement of the booking period. Cash should be placed in an envelope or discreet package.

On arrival our girls will always introduce themselves to the host, so please be ready to welcome them!

If possible, please make available a room or enclosed area where the girls can safely change into or out of their outfits in private.

And last but not least - have a great night!
